

IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please cancel prior Abstract and insert the following:

--A projection type display device includes a light source, a picture information display element, and a light deflection device that deflects light from the light source and irradiates the deflected light on one region of the picture information display element. The light deflection device scans the deflected light over an entire area of the picture information display element and an area outside of an effective display area of the picture information display element.--